K100S with Ductile Iron slotted grates

The maintenance depot is used as a wash down area for the city's buses. A new drainage system was required as the previous trench drain had failed. Failure was due to the grates being left unbolted after routine maintenance. This left them free to move around with the channel and eventually created seating failure.

ACO K100S with QuickLok ductile iron grates was selected as the speed and simplicity of the boltless QuickLok locking system ensured that grates were always locked in position, thus preventing future problems.

QuickLok grates are fitted with a locking stud which push fits into the spring clip positioned in the locking bar to hold the grate securely in place.
